

I want to throw my voice in with those against removing the barriers that exist. I do not believe that adding to efficiencies and the bottom line of companies justify bringing such an important industry under fewer roofs. Owners will focus on profit margins and overall integration in an industry that thrives on diversity and many voices. I do not believe the public is served by this, and hope that you at the FCC will focus on serving the interests of the people rather than the companies who control our media.
